Sparks

Identifying the inner passions, interests and talents of young people inspires them on the path to thriving. Sparks are what help youth see the potential within themselves.

Mindset

Youth who can view challenges as opportunities to learn and grow are more likely to thrive. When young people possess a growth mindset they are more resilient, better able to adapt to challenging situations and tend to get better grades in school.

Self-Reflection

Youth and adult partners engage in meaningful conversations about the strengths and challenges of individual young people. Through dialogue and internal evaluation exercises, youth develop goals toward increasing indicators of thriving that are founded on the 6 C’s.

Goal Management Skills

Expanding on their self-reflection exercises, youth develop goals, create a plan to reach them and make adjustments and adaptations to the goal or plan as challenges arise.
