

Did you know...

Intermountain Research and Extension Center (IREC)

- People have been growing onions for at least 5,000 years.
- Onions are a major specialty crop of north-eastern California.
- Researchers at the Intermountain Research and Extension Center are exploring ways to control difficult pests that attack onions.
- Onions can improve immunity, regulate blood sugar, reduce inflammation and infections.

To learn more about all the research projects at the Intermountain Research and Extension Center, please visit the Center's website.

ucan.edu/sites/intermountain_rec

