

Women for the Land: Resources and Support for Conservation Projects on Your Land

As part of its Women for the Land program, American Farmland Trust invites local women landowners to a conservation learning circle.

Women for the Land is a successful AFT program in the Midwest and Mid-Atlantic states that AFT has brought to California. The program supports women landowners in accessing resources and building strong networks around conservation.

During the learning circle, participants will receive a general introduction to the partners that can help them with land use, protection, and stewardship while also connecting with other women landowners.
