Position Overview

The University of California, Agriculture and Natural Resources (UC ANR), a statewide program with local development and delivery, is seeking the following UC Cooperative Extension (UCCE) Academic Coordinator.

Location Headquarters: University of California Office of the President, Oakland, CA

Purpose: The Academic Coordinator (ACII) will spend about 50% time managing several small ongoing CIWR programs and 50% time managing the new Nitrogen and Irrigation Management Program. The Nitrogen and Irrigation Management program will have between 7-12 people working in different counties to carry out on-farm management of nitrogen and water.

The Academic Coordinator will

- Facilitate communication between administrative and academic programs, partners and projects.
- Carry out planning, problem resolution, and administration of Institute programs and activities.
- Manage CIWRs annual funding proposal development and related competitive grant program, including developing request for proposals, evaluation protocols, coordinating reviews, grant submission, and annual reporting.
- Coordinate development of additional proposals for external funding, manage budgets and reporting, and communicate with granting agencies. Provide support for academic project teams, including developing timelines, and ensuring deliverables are produced and delivered on time.
- Review budgets, invoices, and tracking expenditures in a way that promotes efficiency, effectiveness and accountability as needed to maintain account balances and ensure that funds are spent appropriately and according to the funders’ regulations.
- Prepare high quality written and attractive materials including: proposals and grant reports; program and project impact statements; blog posts, reports, briefings, executive summaries, and brochures; quarterly newsletters; and posters and presentations.
- Provide support and coordination for conferences and meetings.

Counties of Responsibility: The position will be providing support throughout the State of California.
Reporting Relationship: The Academic Coordinator serves under the administrative guidance of the Director of the California Institute of Water Resources.
