

Broadband Deployment & Utilization Advisor

Applied Research and Extension

Serving Butte, Tehama and Glenn Counties, California

Position Overview

The University of California, Agriculture and Natural Resources (UC ANR), a statewide program with local development and delivery, is seeking a Broadband Deployment and Utilization UC Cooperative Extension (UCCE) Advisor.

Location Headquarters. Butte County, CA

Purpose. The Broadband Deployment & Utilization Advisor will implement an innovative extension education and applied research program to address high priority needs and problems to increase community and economic development with an emphasis on the expansion of broadband adoption, implementation, policy, and evaluation.

The position will include a community and economic development component, working closely with regional economic development, academic, industry, and governmental organizations to promote regional prosperity through collaborative efforts.

The advisor will work to support the advancing of rural broadband adoption, as well as other rural utility services (e.g., novel approaches to increase rural adoption of improved practices such as precision agriculture for farms).

The advisor will take an active role in public outreach as the regional lead for broadband and rural utility expansion to support rural community resiliency in Butte and adjacent counties. High priority subject areas include the economics of rural broadband, broadband for the agriculture and rural healthcare sectors, new models for delivering broadband service, and expansion of broadband to unserved and underserved regional households.

This is an exciting opportunity to develop and deliver relevant program content to have meaningful impacts in local communities and throughout California. Opportunities abound for extension and research partnerships that link to work with organizations involved in broadband, agriculture, community development, and environmental justice, key community groups and other non-governmental organizations. The advisor will collaborate with CSU system academics and USDA-ARS researchers. The advisor will also join a team of highly motivated UCCE colleagues who are passionate about their work and are dedicated to making a difference within the communities and throughout California. The potential for collaborative projects within the UC ANR system is nearly limitless.

Counties of Responsibility. This position will be headquartered in Butte County and also serve Tehama and Glenn Counties.

Reporting Relationship: The CE Advisor serves under the administrative guidance of the University of California Cooperative Extension (UCCE) County Director for Butte County with input from the other UCCE County Directors in the coverage area.
