

Complete Online Application by January 11, 2021

November 19, 2020

Thank you for your interest in our 2021 University of California Master Gardener Training Program! If you enjoy gardening and want to teach others how to garden sustainably, this may be the program for you! Please read below to learn more about the program and whether it may be a match for you.

UC Master Gardeners share science-based information by conducting workshops and demonstrations, diagnosing plant and pest problems, speaking to community groups, educating teachers and parents at school gardens, and answering gardening questions at fairs and farmers markets as well as on our email and phone helplines. During the COVID-19 pandemic we are doing many educational activities online.

By training Master Gardeners, we empower neighborhoods to create their own solutions and foster healthier gardens, healthy communities, and sustainable environments. We strongly encourage BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, and people of color) applicants. We aim to have a volunteer force as diverse as the residents of Los Angeles County.

We encourage you to learn more about all that Master Gardeners do! Please watch this video to see Master Gardeners in action, and be sure to read the information and FAQs, below. We will also be hosting several live orientation/Q&A events where you will hear from Master Gardeners, have an opportunity to ask them questions, and learn tips for submitting your application. We will announce these events on our website and our Facebook and Instagram pages (@ucmastergardenerslosangeles). Please be sure to tune in!

Overview

- The UC Master Gardener Training Program in Los Angeles County is open to Los Angeles County residents over 18 years of age.
- We're looking for experienced community volunteers who already:
 - know the basics of gardening.
 - have been involved and volunteered in their communities.
 - have given presentations, small or large.
 - have worked with people of diverse backgrounds.
 - have access to a computer, tablet or smartphone and internet.
- University of California research-based information will be presented to promote sustainable horticultural practices in home, community, and school landscapes.
- Classes will meet for 13 weeks every Saturday from March 6 through June 5, 2021 from 9:00 am to 3:00 pm (excluding two spring-break days). For the Spring 2021 session, classes will be held online. In addition, we hope to have one or more in-the-garden days. Any in-garden activities will depend on COVID-19 status in LA County and will follow relevant safety guidelines. All class meetings start promptly at 9:00 am. You must attend the first class on March 6. After the first class, you can miss only one meeting with prior notice, and it will be your responsibility to complete any makeup work.
- Instruction in English will include lectures, hands-on activities, and possible field trips to botanical gardens and other sites.

If you are accepted into our 2021 Master Gardener Training Program

- You will be emailed an acceptance letter on February 3 with your first class assignments and due dates – all to be completed prior to the first day of class.
- You will be emailed a Live Scan form and list of Live Scan locations in L.A. County for required fingerprinting and criminal background check by the California Department of Justice. Fingerprinting will need to be completed no later than February 21.

- By February 21, you will need to pay the $300 course fee online by credit card or by check. Partial scholarships are available. Our scholarship fund prioritizes those who are unemployed or underemployed, full time students, single parents, or encountering financial hardship.

Class Session

- Class members are called “Master Gardener Trainees” while they attend the 13-week, 78-hour training course.
- Class will NOT meet on Saturday, April 3, 2021 or on May 30, 2021. These are our Spring Break days.
- Major class topics include basic plant science, propagation, fertilization, soils, irrigation, composting, vegetable, herb, and fruit gardening, ornamental plants and trees gardening, Integrated Pest Management (diseases, insects, weeds, small animals), tools, how to start community and school gardens, and community outreach techniques.
- Graduation from the class session requires 1) attendance at each week’s class (you may miss only one class with prior notice) and 2) a passing grade of at least 70% on the take-home, open-book final examination.

Volunteering

- For the first year, a minimum of 50 hours of volunteering by June 30, 2022 can be accomplished in these areas:
 - Community and school gardens, farmers markets and fairs – giving workshops, responding to gardening questions, providing technical assistance to gardeners.
 - Phone and email helplines – answering gardening questions.
- Master Gardeners must post all of their volunteer and continuing education hours onto the online Statewide Master Gardener Volunteer Management System. Instructions will be provided.
- In order to maintain active status after the first year, Master Gardeners must post a minimum of 25 volunteer hours and 12 continuing education hours annually.

Monthly Meetings

Monthly Continuing Education meetings are held on the second Saturday of every month from June through February from 10 am to 12:30 pm online and at various garden locations throughout Los Angeles County.

Graduation

On the last day of class, June 5, “Master Gardener Trainees” who have completed their final exam and class evaluation become “First-Year Master Gardeners” and receive a Certificate of Completion of Class Instruction and Master Gardener identification badges.

We hope you’ll continue volunteering in our program long after you’ve completed your initial minimum requirements. We have active Master Gardeners from every year’s class since 1990; they’ve volunteered thousands of hours!

Application Survey Submission

- Complete the online application survey by 6:00 pm on January 11, 2021.

2021 UC Master Gardener
Training Program Application for Los Angeles County
Frequently Asked Questions

These questions may help you decide if you want to apply to the UC Master Gardener Program.

1. What kind of volunteer work will I be doing to get my required 50 hours of volunteer service?

Lots of things! Some examples are working at community gardens, school gardens, and staffing tables at fairs and farmers markets in an educational role – you might be answering questions, teaching a workshop, or helping to design a garden. You might help to teach an online gardening class. The key is that you are educating the public about gardening. Master Gardeners teach non-commercial gardeners only. We also need volunteers to assist with various committees that help us run the MG Program. In 2019-2020, our 339 Master Gardener volunteers logged 11, 538 volunteer hours Los Angeles County residents at 253 locations (71 community gardens, 89 school gardens, 4 senior gardens, 10 homeless and women's shelters, and 79 fairs, workshops, farmers markets and phone and email helplines).

2. What kinds of things are not eligible for MG volunteer hours?

- a. Physical labor (such as digging, weeding, etc.) generally does not count as volunteer hours except in certain rare assignments pre-approved by the MG staff. However, during the COVID-19 pandemic, we are offering more opportunities for garden labor for MG hours.
- b. Starting a garden club, or a local chapter of a gardening organization.
- c. Any work with a for-profit company.
- d. Advising commercial gardeners (any person or agency that is selling what they grow or selling their gardening services).
- e. Travel time to volunteer assignments except in rare pre-approved circumstances.
- f. Visits to and work in individual backyards or private properties. We don't allow MGs to visit individual backyards or personal properties as part of their volunteer service.

3. I want to teach people about raising chickens (bees, goats, food preservation, etc.) in addition to teaching them about gardening. Can I do that as a Master Gardener?

No. You will be able to teach any of the topics covered in the California Master Gardener Handbook that you are trained on in MG class. We do not cover any animal husbandry or beekeeping, nor do we cover food preservation, so we can't allow you to teach those in your capacity as a UC Master Gardener. We will provide you with suggestions about where to refer members of the public who are interested in these topics.

4. When will I do my Master Gardener hours? Will you assign me projects?

During your first year of the Master Gardener Program, you'll be required to complete your 50 volunteer hours by working on specific assigned projects. After your first year, you can continue working on those projects, you can work on any other established project, or you can create your own project with prior approval from MG staff. We also send out numerous volunteer opportunities – it will be up to you to respond to and follow up with these. Your first-year volunteer hours must be completed by June 30, 2022.

5. I want to apply, but it is possible that I will be moving away within the next year. Should I apply?

If there is a possibility that you will move away from Los Angeles County in your first year after training, we encourage you to apply another time! We invest a great deal in training each Los Angeles County Master Gardener, and when they cannot do their volunteer hours because they move away, it means that we have less support to offer to the many schools and community groups that request Master Gardener assistance. So if you are planning a career change that may involve a transfer, are applying to graduate schools out of the area, etc., we ask that you hold off and apply at another time.

6. How many people become Master Gardeners in Los Angeles County each year?

Most years about 50 people become Master Gardeners, but in 2021 we plan to welcome around 75 participants because the online format allows for some expansion of the class. We typically receive 100-150 applications since there are so many enthusiastic gardeners in Los Angeles County. Those invited typically have a strong track record as community volunteers who already have some knowledge of gardening. People often apply more than once before they enter the program.

7. I don't live in Los Angeles County; can I still apply?

Each county has its own UC Master Gardener Program, and we suggest that you apply in your county of residence. There may be occasional case-by-case exceptions, but we do prioritize Los Angeles County residents.

8. I am a staff member at an agency that works with school gardens (or community gardens, etc.) Does my work count towards my Master Gardener volunteer hours?

No, Master Gardener work is not paid work. It may be possible to get your volunteer hours with your agency, with prior approval of MG staff, but you will need to do something that's above and beyond your paid assignment.

9. I have an unpaid internship with an agency that works with school gardens (or community gardens, etc.). Does my work count for my Master Gardener hours?

No, we consider this much the same as paid employment. You may be able to get your volunteer hours with your agency, with prior approval of MG staff, but you will need to do something that's above and beyond your existing internship.

10. I am passionate about organic gardening (permaculture gardening, square foot gardening, etc.) and I really want to teach that method. Will that be okay?

In the UC Master Gardener Program, you'll be learning university research-based information about many aspects of gardening. You'll be offering options to those you work with, rather than promoting one particular style of gardening.

11. What if I want the training but don't have time to volunteer?

The UC Master Gardener Training Program is specifically for individuals who have time to volunteer. We count on our trained Master Gardeners to respond to numerous community volunteer requests. When people do not fulfill their volunteer commitment, it prevents us from reaching people in Los Angeles who need help learning how to garden – at schools, in communities, and other locations. Fortunately, if you are interested in the information only, there are other options. You can purchase the UC Master Gardener Handbook or take one of our 4-week Grow LA Victory Garden sessions in spring or fall.

12. I'm still not sure if this program is right for me or if I qualify.

Please be sure to find out about upcoming live orientation/Q&A events where you will hear from Master Gardeners, have an opportunity to ask them questions, and hear tips on submitting your application. We will announce these events on our website and our Facebook and Instagram pages (@ucmastergardenerslosangeles). Please be sure to tune in!
